CARBONDALE, ILL., APRIL -- Neith E. Headley, kindergarten teacher in the Institute of Child Welfare at the University of Minnesota, will speak at a banquet for Southern Illinois kindergarten-primary teachers April 19 at Everine's Restaurant near De Soto.

Miss Headley is the co-author of "Education in the Kindergarten", a textbook for kindergarten teachers.

The 1 p.m. banquet will conclude a Kindergarten-Primary Materials Workshop from 9 a.m. to noon at Southern Illinois University's Industrial Arts Department.

Requested by area teachers, the workshop is sponsored by the SIU Branch of the Association for Childhood Education, according to Marilyn Eckert, Herrin, president. The meeting will open with a 8:30 a.m. coffee session.

A $2 fee will cover all expenses, Miss Eckert said. April 15 is the deadline for reservations, which may be sent to Dr. Sina M. Mott, kindergarten supervisor at University School.

Carbondale, Illinois---An all-day program for high school students interested in business careers is planned for April 19th at Southern Illinois University.

Guidance sessions will be held in accounting, management, and other business fields. Stenographic and typing tests will be given for high school students who want to qualify for part-time clerical work when they enroll at the University.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois--- More than 500 student projects are expected to be entered in an Industrial Education Fair at Southern Illinois University April 11th and 12th.

The projects of high school students will be judged in the morning, and they will be put on public exhibition after 11 a.m.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois---Southern Illinois University debaters have concluded their season with a total of 181 victories and 92 defeats.

Debaters Ray Canterbury of Mt. Morris and Ted Foster of Mt. Vernon recorded five wins and no losses in a two-state tournament at Illinois Normal University over the weekend. Two freshmen, Gailverne Kopp and Keith Sanders of Benton, swept all four of their challenges at the University of Illinois Novice Tournament Saturday.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois---Four Southern Illinois University staff members and two power company representatives left for New York today (Thursday) to shop for new industries.

They will be in charge of a large display presenting the industrial advantages of Southern Illinois at the National Industrial Development Exposition next week. The display was financed by 10 communities and four counties participating in the University's community development program.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April -- More than 500 entries are expected for the Industrial Education Student Project Fair at Southern Illinois University April 11-12, according to John H. Erickson, SIU associate professor of industrial education who is chairman of the Fair committee. The Egyptian Roundtable, an organization of industrial education teachers in Southern Illinois, is sponsoring the event.

Awards will be presented in 20 different divisions at 10:30 a.m. April 12 in the exhibit area of the SIU Agriculture Building auditorium where the Fair will be held. Entries will be judged in three classifications according to school grade-- 7-8, 9-10, and 11-12. Projects, constructed by students under the general supervision of their instructors, will be rated on the basis of craftsmanship, design, and opportunity for student learning, Erickson says. They will be accepted at the exhibit area between 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. April 10 and from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. April 11.

The Project Fair will be open to the general public after 1 p.m. April 11 in the Agriculture Building.

Among those on various committees for the Project Fair are:

Frank Dohanich and Albert Gulley, West Frankfort high school; Carl Bushard, Chester; Raymond Verble, Cairo; Kenneth Kline, Rosiclare; Howard Jones, Mt. Vernon; Walter Troutman, Herrin; Carlyle Ott, Carbondale; Harry Meinert, Springfield, Illinois Department of Education; and Goffrey Hughes, Carbondale, executive director, Southern Illinois Incorporated.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Dr. I. Clark Davis, acting director of student affairs at Southern Illinois University, has received the 1958 Faculty Service Award sponsored by "The Egyptian", S-I-U campus newspaper.

The award was presented at an annual Journalism Day Dinner Thursday night (April 3). Selection was made on the basis of service to students, popularity with faculty members, and professional standing.

Dr. Davis has been on the faculty at Southern for nine years.

#####

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- At least 30 operators of municipal water plants in Southern Illinois are expected to enroll in the first adult course ever offered by the nationally-famous Department of Microbiology at Southern Illinois University.

The special non-credit evening course, which will stress identity and control of bacteria in public water supplies, will be conducted from May 6 to June 12.

Five specialists from the Illinois Department of Public Health will help S-I-U faculty members teach the course.

#####

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Thousands of problems will be solved at Southern Illinois University when nearly 500 high school students and teachers come to the campus for a "Mathematics Day" April 19.

A special feature of the program will be tests covering algebra, geometry and trigonometry in which the students will compete for prizes. Other events will be an address by British mathematician W.W. Sawyer and a panel discussion on "Information Theory", a new branch of mathematics.

#####

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Sharon Sue Neilson, 17-year-old mathematics major from Herrin, Illinois, is the first winner of a cash award presented quarterly to the best freshman zoology student at Southern Illinois University.

Her prize: A piggy bank bulging with 25 dollars in quarters and dimes.

The award is one of two scholarship incentive prizes established last January by anonymous donors.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April -- A play which so aroused Irish temperaments that its premiere 50 years ago caused riots in Dublin's Abbey Theater will be staged the week of April 14 on the Southern Illinois University campus.

The Southern Players, SIU student drama group, will present John Millington Synge's "Playboy of the Western World" as one of two plays scheduled during the current Festival of Fine Arts. "Dark of the Moon," the Players' concluding presentation of the campus season, is scheduled for performance the week of May 13.

Although modern theater-goers are likely to see little in the play to make them tear out seats or rip up the stage sets--as Dublin's premiere audiences did--its deft satire on Irish customs and mannerisms retains a sharp cutting edge. Curtain time will be 8 p.m. nightly through April 19 (with single admissions priced at $1).

Director William Zoekler of the SIU theater department has double-cast all female roles, giving each player three alternating performances. Karen Bartok of Herrin and Ann Hughes of McLeansboro will play Margaret Flaherty, while Doris Draege of Richview and Jean Fowler, Metropolis, will share the role of Widow Quinn

Other lead assignments: Harriet Sax, Chicago, and Phyllis Hall, McLeansboro, as Sara Tansey; Carolyn Keeper, Carbondale, and Janice Gidcumb, Harrisburg, as Susan Brady; Carline Laws, Clinton, and Edith Borgsmiller, Murphysboro, as Honor Blake, and Phyllis Urey, Jonesboro, and Carol Vanzandt, Marion, as Nellie Casey.

Dan Bode, Collinsville; Richard Hunsaker, New Athens; James Lash, Dundee and Paul Jones, McLeansboro, will handle top male roles along with Roger Long, Pana; Richard Payne, Enfield; Jerry Van Dover, Poplar Bluff, Mo. (1728 Seibert); David Voice, Washington, and Wayne Crome, Gillespie.

CARBONDALE, ILL., April--An all-French concert by the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra, a return engagement by the Henry Street Playhouse Dance Company and two talks on Deems Taylor are top-billed attractions during the second week of Southern Illinois University's Festival of Fine Arts. All events are free to the public.

The Festival began March 30 with an oratorio concert and the opening of a Toulouse-Lautrec exhibition in Allyn Gallery. The two events drew more than 1,000 persons, by far the largest opening-day crowd in the Festival's three-year history.

The French theme to be repeated in many Festival features during the next two months will be underlined in "La Belle Epoque," Monday (April 7) evening lecture by Dr. Madeline Smith, associate professor of French at SIU. Miss Smith's lecture will describe esthetic life in Paris at the turn of the century.

Termed by Conductor Carmine Ficocelli "the most interesting program we will play this season," a Tuesday night (April 8) concert by the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra will include the "L'Arlisienne Suite," by Georges Bizet; "The Carnival of the Animals, by Saint-Saens; "Overture and Allegro from 'La Sultane' Suite," by Couperin-Milhaud; "Adagio Pathetique," by Benjamin Godard; the overture to Lalo's "Le Roi D'Ys"; the "Marguerite Waltz," from Gounod's "Faust"; "Pavane," by Gabriel Faure, and the evening's major presentation, "Espana Rhapsody" by Emmanuel Chabrier.

A highly original group directed by Choreographer Alwin Nikolais, the Henry Street Playhouse Dance Company will stage its eight-part dance abstraction, "Kaleidoscope," in an 8:15 p.m. performance Wednesday (April 9) at Shyrock Auditorium.

Noted composer, commentator and "man about music" Deems Taylor, will make two public appearances Thursday (April 10). At 10 a.m. in Shryock Auditorium he will reminisce on his experiences as a composer. An 8:15 p.m. lecture in the Library will describe "Today in the World of Music."

The art films, "Romeo and Juliet Ballet" and "Ballet by Degas" will be shown Friday (April 11) at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. in the University School Auditorium, and a special exhibition, "Life and Venequela," will open at 2:30 p.m. Sunday (April 13) in the University Museum.

The week's concluding feature will be a recital of "Music of the Paris Cathedrals" at 3:30 p.m. Sunday (April 13) in the First Methodist Church by Dr. Glenn Watkins, young SIU faculty organist who studied in France last year.

Carbondale, Illinois -- Both the Illinois "Mother of the Year" and the state's first lady will be honored during Women's Day at Southern Illinois University April 24.

Mrs. Elbert Fulkerson of Carbondale, who was recently named "Mother of the Year", will be a special guest of the S-I-U Women's Club. Mrs. William G. Stratton, wife of the governor, will receive the Southern Illinois Women's "Leader of the Year" Award.

In an afternoon ceremony, Mrs. Stratton will unveil the University's "Objectives", which are lettered in bronze on marble in the S-I-U Library.

Women throughout Southern Illinois are invited to participate in the day's activities, which will include a coffee hour, musical program, style show, campus tours, luncheon, and reception.

April 15 is the deadline for reservations, which may be sent to Mrs. Jo Ann Boydston, general chairman, at Box 1, Carbondale.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois --- A play which caused riots when it was first presented in Ireland 50 years ago will be staged at Southern Illinois University the week of April 14.

The Southern Players, S-I-U student drama group, will present John Synge's "Playboy of the Western World" at eight o'clock each evening through April 19. The play is a satire of Irish customs and mannerisms.

William Zoeckler of the S-I-U Theater Department is the director.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois --- Dr. Delyte W. Morris, president of Southern Illinois University, will be the initial speaker at a convention of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in St. Louis April 24 through 27.

His address on "Women and Education" will be presented at a luncheon April 25. More than 900 women representing most of the state's 113 clubs are expected to attend.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Labor economist David J. Saposs will discuss "American Politics, Communism, and Citizenship" in a public lecture at Southern Illinois University April 17.

The talk will begin at 8 p.m. in the University School Studio Theater.

Dr. Saposs is a distinguished visiting professor at the University of Illinois Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations. During World War Two he was chief adviser to the Labor Production Division of the War Production Board.

He also has served with the Bureau of Labor Statistics and with the European Cooperation Administration in Berlin. His latest book, "American Politics and Communism", will be published this year.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April--Labor economist David J. Saposs, distinguished visiting professor at the University of Illinois Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations, will discuss "American Politics, Communism and Citizenship" in a public lecture at Southern Illinois University April 17. The talk will begin at 8 p.m. in the University School Studio Theater.

Dr. Saposs, wartime chief adviser to the Labor Production Division of the War Production Board, served with the Bureau of Labor Statistics from 1946 to 1948 and with the European Cooperation Administration in Berlin from 1948 to 1951. He was special economic adviser to Gen. Lucius Clay for the allied military government of West Germany and served for four years as labor consultant to the Coordinator of ~~Inter-American~~ Affairs.

Born in Russia, Saposs came to the U.S. in 1895 and was educated at the University of Wisconsin and Columbia University. He is the author of many books and other works including "Left Wing Unionism," "Readings in Trade Unionism" and "The Labor Movement in Post-War France." His "American Politics and Communism" will be published this year.

Dr. Saposs' appearance at SIU will be sponsored by the SIU Government Department and the Citizenship Clearing House of New York, an organization founded by Judge Arthur Vanderbilt to stimulate student and faculty participation in national affairs.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Governor Averell Harriman and other New York State officials have been among the visitors to the Southern Illinois Display at the National Industrial Development Exhibit this week.

Harriman was served a mock summons Monday (April 7) by Justice of the Peace Pat Dwyer, a Southern Illinois University student who is assisting University personnel in staffing the large display in the New York Coliseum.

Industrialists seeking new plant sites will view the exhibits through Friday (April 11). Displays from Southern Illinois and the State of Illinois face a New Jersey exhibit and are flanked by displays from Oregon and Alabama.

Cooperating with the S-I-U Department of Community Development in a 35-foot exhibit are Carlyle, Cobden, Coulterville, Edwardsville, Flora, Mt. Vernon, Mounds, Steeleville, West Frankfort, Gallatin County, Hardin County, Pope County, and Saline County.

East St. Louis, another community working on a development program with the University's assistance, has a 15-foot display, and the Illinois Division of Industrial Planning and Development also has a 15-foot booth.

The University's team is headed by Robert S. Henderson.

#####

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- A workshop at Southern Illinois University this summer will demonstrate for teachers how foreign language instruction can be integrated in the elementary school program.

Dr. Hellmut A. Hartwig will direct the fifth annual Elementary School Foreign Language Workshop which will open June 16 and continue through July 11.

For years, children above the fourth grade in Carbondale schools have been taught foreign languages in an experimental program conducted by Dr. Hartwig, assisted by S-I-U foreign language graduate assistants.

Workshop enrollment is open to teachers who have had college training in French, Spanish, or German. The course offers four quarter hours of college credits.

Carbondale, Illinois -- Sales and marketing factors in today's sagging business economy will be discussed at a Marketing Conference at Southern Illinois University May 2.

Sponsored by the S-I-U Marketing Department, the conference will feature several outstanding economists and marketing specialists.

Among them will be Dr. Harvey Huegry, head of the University of Illinois Marketing Department; Joseph Meek, president of the Illinois Retail Merchants Association; and Dr. Albert Haring, professor of marketing of Indiana University.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois -- Dr. Francis H. Horn, distinguished visiting professor of higher education at Southern Illinois University, will be the main speaker at the third annual conference of Midwest Academic Librarians at S-I-U April 25 and 26.

Nearly 150 librarians from colleges and universities in nine midwestern states are expected to attend, according to Ralph E. McCoy, S-I-U director of libraries.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois -- Southern Illinois University drama students will present a one-act play in social adjustment at the tenth annual Illinois Mental Health Conference in Springfield April 18.

The play, called "The Room Upstairs", is one of two mental health dramatizations the Southern Players are staging in Southern Illinois communities under a grant from the Illinois Department of Welfare. -30-

The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the atom. It is shown that the structure of the atom is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are derived from the principles of relativity and the theory of the structure of the atom. The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the study of the properties of matter. It is shown that the theory of the structure of the atom can be used to study the properties of matter, and that the properties of matter can be used to study the theory of the structure of the atom. The third part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the study of the properties of the universe. It is shown that the theory of the structure of the atom can be used to study the properties of the universe, and that the properties of the universe can be used to study the theory of the structure of the atom.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- A book on methods and materials of ceramic decoration has been written by Lois Culver Long, one of Southern Illinois University's first master's degree graduates in ceramics.

Published by the American Art Clay Company, the 60-page book features 175 photographs, mainly of pottery made by F. Carlton Ball, former head of the pottery section of S-I-U's School of Fine Arts. Pots by Aaron Bohrod, former artist in residence at Southern, also are pictured in the book.

Mrs. Long, a ceramics consultant for the company which published her book, spent three years gathering information and photographs for it.

(SPORTS)

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Americans are becoming more interested in track, largely because of increased coverage of track events by the press.

That's the opinion of Leland "Doc" Lingle, who this month began his thirty-second year as head track coach at Southern Illinois University.

Lingle thinks track records will continue to be broken.

"Track is a science," he said. "High school and college coaching is getting better all the time, and track facilities keep improving, too."

The veteran coach would like to see more standardization between high school and college track. He believes that many state high school associations are going in the wrong direction by putting a ban on some field events, such as the javelin and discus.

During his 31 years of coaching, Lingle has led S-I-U to a dual meet track record of 111 wins compared to only 38 losses. His teams have won two conference championships and the state college meet 10 times.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois -- Thomas L. Thomas, popularly known as "America's favorite baritone", will be the guest soloist at Southern Illinois University's "Music Under the Stars" festival May 10.

Thomas has been a guest artist with such major orchestras as the New York Philharmonic. He also is a regular performer on "The Voice of Firestone" and other radio and television programs.

The colorful outdoor event at McAndrew Stadium will be performed as a memorial to the late Floyd Wakeland, former S-I-U choral director who organized the festival nine years ago.

Dr. Robert Hines, the new director, has announced a number of innovations in this year's program. In place of the massed high school bands of the past, Philip Olsson, S-I-U director of bands, will lead a group of some 200 musicians selected from high school bands in the area. No elementary bands will appear on the program.

Another new feature will be a large symphony orchestra to be directed by Dr. Carmine Ficocelli (fick-uh-CHELLY), conductor of the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra.

Massed high school and elementary choruses will perform. Vocal and piano solo winners in preliminary contests for the Chicagoland Music Festival also will be presented.

More than five thousand persons are expected to attend.

MAN'S PHYSICAL ENVIRONMENT

(EDITORS: This is the second in a series of articles designed to show the relationship of the sciences to each other and to man)

Chemistry--II

(By Dr. James Neckers, chairman of the department of chemistry, Southern Illinois University)

As the Topsy-like growth of the petroleum industry points up chemistry's achievements in applied or "practical" research, so an entirely different kind of dedication by one man illustrates the sometimes dramatic results of theoretical study.

Mentioned in few, if any, current history books is a "pure" scientist named Edward C. Kendall, who is one of the Napoleons of chemistry. "Playing around" (a scientist's favorite term for his largely unpublicized labors) back in the 20's, Kendall began to examine the secretions of man's ductless glands. He had started digging into the functions of the thyroid while at Columbia University, and when he moved to the Mayo Clinic in 1930 an unrelenting curiosity led him to continue on the adrenal glands.

It wasn't all play, because Kendall knew that Addison's disease, a relatively rare affliction which causes anemia, low blood pressure, asthenia and, usually, death, is characterized by a failure of these glands to produce their life-giving secretions. Breaking down the glandular juices to get the compound important in Addison's disease would, of course, be a valuable contribution to medicine. But Kendall's chief goal was to find out what the secretions were made of.

By 1936, Kendall had isolated eight compounds from the secretion of the suprarenal cortex. He lettered them "A" through "H" and spent the next two years analyzing the chemical structure of each. From 1938 through 1940 he began testing them clinically. Result: He found that it required 150 tons of adrenal glands (from slaughtered stockyard animals) to get two ounces of compound "A". It would take years of collecting stockyard adrenal glands just to get a thousand doses for treatment.

(MORE)

A Merck Chemical Company chemist became interested in the study and in four years developed a way to synthesize the "A" compound in a laboratory. But clinical tests showed that it didn't work on Addison's disease.

Merck shifted to the "E" compound and after spending half a million dollars perfected a 21-step process for making a synthetic that would cure Addison's disease--17 years after Kendall began "playing around."

But Kendall's work wasn't finished. His studies of "E" had shown that its highly complex structure was almost an organic dead-ringer for the unworkable "A" compound. The only difference was the addition of a group of oxygen-hydrogen molecules on a ring of carbon.

Further research revealed an astonishing similarity between the molecular structure of "E" and that of pregnene, a body hormone produced by expectant mothers. Reaching far out into left field, Kendall started working on another hunch based on the well-known fact that pregnant women rarely have arthritis.

The result in 1949 was a breakthrough, the history of which could be traced on hundreds of formula-littered notepads and thousands of tedious hours at the lab table. "E" became the father of cortisone--which name comes from the cortex of the adrenal gland, where Kendall 20 years before began searching for something he wasn't sure of himself.

For finding cortisone, man's new weapon against arthritis, Kendall received the Nobel Prize in 1950.

History is dotted with Kendalls whose names might puzzle the brightest schoolboy but whose contributions to the welfare of man far outweigh those of his mightiest military heroes or most powerful financiers. The science of chemistry has contributed many of them and produced the know-how for many more.

Less than one-half of one percent of the total working force in the U.S. today is represented by research chemists and engineers. Within their ranks are the Kendalls, Pasteurs and Farradays of tomorrow, and with them lies man's hope for the future.

Carbondale, Illinois -- An alternate program to President Eisenhower's federal plan for expanding scientific education was proposed Tuesday night (April 15) by Lloyd Morey, visiting professor of business at Southern Illinois University.

Morey, a former president of the University of Illinois, emphasized the need for broad, liberal education rather than narrow scientific or technical training. His address was the second of five lectures sponsored by the S-I-U School of Business.

The plan advocated by Morey calls for re-adjusting high school programs, establishing branches of existing universities at more locations, and encouraging states and individuals to provide more scholarships.

Morey also favors consolidating college courses and expanding the amount of time students spend in liberal arts. In addition, he recommends that states and communities retain the initiative for education. He asked that federal aid to education be restricted and that the federal government make suggestions rather than dictate teaching standards.

Morey said his program would accomplish the objectives of Eisenhower's plan in a more comprehensive manner and with better results for education.

Carbondale, Illinois -- Southern Illinois University's Opera Workshop will present its first full-length major opera -- "La Boheme" -- May 22 and 23, according to William Taylor, director.

Combining the best S-I-U vocal talent and the accompaniment of the University Orchestra, the production will conclude Southern's Fine Art Festival.

Each performance will begin at 8 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium. Reserved seat tickets -- one dollar for adults and 50 cents for children -- are now available by mail from the S-I-U Music Department.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois -- Rock shelters which may have been inhabited by pre-historic Indians will be covered with water when Devil's Kitchen Dam is completed southeast of Carbondale.

Howard Winters, Southern Illinois University Museum specialist, will spend weekends for the next two months gathering artifacts from four rock shelters which have been discovered in what will be the lake basin. He will be assisted by S-I-U archaeology students.

Winters said the occupation was on a small scale, probably by hunting groups between the fifth and tenth centuries.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April--Southern Illinois University archaeology students will spend weekends for the next two months gathering artifacts of prehistoric habitation from the Devils Kitchen Lake site, according to Howard Winters of the SIU Museum staff.

Four small rock shelters giving evidence of habitation by prehistoric Indians have been found in the area scheduled for inundation. Winters says the occupation was on a small scale, probably by periodic hunting groups of the Late Woodland culture of 1,000 to 1,500 years ago.

James Gillihan, Museum staff member formerly of Mt. Carmel, is supervising the field work. Most assisting students are members of the SIU Archaeology Club.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April--Dr. Charles H. Lange, assistant professor of anthropology at Southern Illinois University, has received a $1,500 grant from the American Council of Learned Societies, New York, for archaeological study on and near the Cochiti Indians Reservation in New Mexico this summer.

Lange's project will be part of the SIU Museum's summer field session in archaeology. It will be concerned with studying the historic and prehistoric cultural background of present day Cochiti Indians in the middle Rio Grande River valley. He will direct the work of not more than six students and will be assisted by Steve Pasko, 1957 SIU graduate from Buckner, (Ill.) who now is a graduate student at the University of New Mexico.

Lange's field work will begin June 15 and continue until Sept. 15.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April --Works by two pioneer musical modernists will be sung by the Chamber and Women's Choirs of Southern Illinois University in a Fine Arts Festival concert here Sunday (April 20).

To begin at 3:30 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium, the choral program under the direction of Dr. Robert Hines will be open to the public.

Ruth Batts of West Frankfort and Nada Jo Binnion of Vandalia will be featured soprano soloists for the Women's Choir presentation of "The Blessed Damsel," Claude Debussy's hauntingly beautiful cantata.

The Chamber Choir will sing six "Chansons" by Paul Hindemith: "The Doe"; "A Swan"; "Since All is Passing"; "Springtime"; "In Winter," and "Orchard."

Both the Women's and Chamber Choirs are modified editions of long-established SIU choral groups. Formerly known as the "Southern Belles," the Women's Choir is made up of select vocalists from the parent mixed chorus. The Chamber Choir has been built around the famed SIU Madrigal Singers, a 16-voice organization founded by the late Floyd Wakeland in 1943.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- More than sixteen hundred Southern Illinois students will go day-camping next month at Camp Si-Bo-Gi (sy-BOgie), a new outdoor education area east of Giant City State Park.

Seventeen schools will send students to the rustic, wooded retreat for one-day excursions, according to Mrs. Jo Ann Boydston executive director of the Educational Council of One Hundred.

Si-Bo-Gi, an abbreviation for "Southern Illinois Boys and Girls", is located on federal land leased to the Council, a regional organization of citizens interested in education.

Requests for using the camp during its first season were so numerous that more than four hundred students from eight schools had to be turned away, Mrs. Boydston said. Guides and counselors at the camp will be students in the Recreation and Outdoor Education Department at Southern Illinois University.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- A noted authority on left-wing influences in labor organizations sounded a stern warning against "growing sentimentality" toward Communist Russia in a speech at Southern Illinois University Thursday night (April 17).

David J. Saposs said Americans are showing signs of the same delusions towards the U-S-S-R as they did during World War Two.

Before yielding to current pressures for negotiations and stepped-up trade with communist countries, Americans should remind themselves that Soviet Communism is a totalitarian state pledged to destroy democratic civilization, Saposs said.

Saposs is a visiting professor at the University of Illinois Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations. He will leave for Europe in June for research on a book which will compare national labor movements.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- A tough schedule awaits Southern Illinois University's athletes next week. S-I-U teams will compete in ten events in five days, beginning Tuesday (April 22).

Southern's baseball team, winner of its first five regular-season contests, will host Central Michigan in a single game Friday and a double-header Saturday. Ron Ayers, S-I-U pitcher from Flora who has been sidelined with an injured finger, is expected to see action in these games.

In tennis, Southern's netmen will travel to Illinois Normal for a match there Tuesday. Continuing the road trip, they will play at the University of Iowa Friday and at Bradley University Saturday.

S-I-U's track team will compete with Southeast Missouri State College in home meets Wednesday night and Saturday afternoon. Southern's inexperienced but unbeaten golfers will host St. Louis University Tuesday and Southeast Missouri Wednesday.

And that still doesn't wrap up next week's sports at S-I-U. On Monday, more than fifty players will begin their third week of spring football drills.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April -- Famed ceramist Marguerite Wildenhain will conduct two pottery workshops for students and area craftsmen beginning Monday (April 21) at Southern Illinois University.

The French-born artist who now lives and works in California will instruct beginning students in a daily morning workshop from Monday (April 21) through Friday (April 25). The advanced workshop will be conducted through the following week. Both classes will be limited to 30 students and no formal registration or fee will be required.

An adjunct professor at SIU (a title conferred on some consultants or lecturers who receive no SIU salary), Mrs. Wildenhain received her original training at Bauhaus, birthplace of modern architecture and design founded by Walter Gropius in Weimar, Germany some 30 years ago. Following seven years of apprenticeship she received the degree of master potter.

After teaching and making models for the porcelain industry, she fled Germany during Hitler's rise, operated a workshop in Holland, then came to the U.S. in 1940. She taught for two years at the California College of Arts and Crafts, then set up her Pond Farm workshop near Guerneville.

One of the world's foremost ceramists whose work has been described as "modern pottery as good as the best of Chinese and Japanese," Mrs. Wildenhain has exhibited extensively in the U.S. and abroad. Her summer course at Pond Farm attracts students from all parts of the nation.

An Exhibition of her works will open in SIU's Allyn Gallery Wednesday (April 23) as part of the current Festival of Fine Arts. She will also give a public lecture on "The Esthetics of Pottery" at 8:15 p.m., April 30, in the University School Auditorium.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April -- The fundamentals of a new method for controlling the quality of manufactured goods will be taught in a 12-week adult night course at Southern Illinois University's Vocational-Technical Institute during the next three months.

"Basic Statistical Quality Control," a production tool developed only since the last war, will stress statistical concepts and "probability theory" as they apply to quality control. Students will learn to inspect "in process" or finished materials and parts through the use of control charts and sampling plans based on statistical laws. Measuring and testing devices keyed to probability curves now are used throughout industry and commerce.

Registration for the non-credit class, open to any area adult, will be held Wednesday (April 30) at 7 p.m. in the Southern Acres classroom building east of Carterville. The first class session will follow with subsequent meetings to be held on Wednesdays from 7-9:30 p.m.

Instructor for the course will be Curtis Kurtz, a Master's degree graduate in engineering now employed by the Norge Company in Herrin. Tuition is $12 but Illinois veterans may take the course free by submitting a copy of discharge papers.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Gov. Stratton says he is planning a vigorous campaign in behalf of a 248-million dollar bond issue which will go to Illinois voters in November.

The bond issue funds will be earmarked for buildings at state institutions, including colleges and universities. The governor said he was "quite hopeful" for the bond issue because similar measures "recently" carried in Missouri and New York.

Stratton promised to campaign for the measure in an interview at Southern Illinois University, where he watched Mrs. Stratton received the "Leader of the Year" Award presented annually by the S-I-U's Women's Club.

Asked about the current recession, Stratton said Illinois has the lowest unemployment rate of any industrial state, mainly because its industry is varied.

#####

CARBONDALE, ILL., APRIL -- A summer course in clothing and textiles featuring a two-week field trip to New York and other eastern cities will be offered for the first time this year by the School of Home Economics at Southern Illinois University.

Designed primarily for graduate students and extension workers, the course also is open to seniors. Six quarter hours of college credit may be obtained by successfully completing the course, which is scheduled for June 16 through July 5. A week of preparation on the SIU campus will precede the trip.

Traveling by chartered bus, the students will study the clothing and textiles industry from the production of textiles fibers to the final stages of clothing construction.

The group will tour plants and laboratories in Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, and Delaware as well as several in New York, according to Dr. Adeline M. Hoffman, chairman of the Department of Clothing and Textiles, who will conduct the course.

In addition, visits will be made to a rug mill, a lace mill, a commercial pattern factory, a leather tannery, and the custom workrooms of the high fashion trade.

In New York, side trips will be made to the United Nations, museums and art galleries, Radio City Music Hall, and other points of interest.

Cost of transportation and lodging, not including meals and local transportation in New York, will be $135, Dr. Hoffman said. Reservations are now being accepted.

CARBONDALE, ILL., April -- A professor of education at Yale University will conduct a four-week seminar on "Philosophy of Education" this summer in the Department of Educational Administration and Supervision at Southern Illinois University.

He is Dr. John S. Brubacher, who holds the position of Halleck Professor of History and Philosophy of Education at Yale. A past president of the Philosophy of Education Society, Dr. Brubacher is editor of "Eclectic Philosophy of Education", a book upon which his lectures will be based. The course will examine current educational problems in the light of the conflicting philosophies which underlie them.

Designed for graduate students and school administrators, the course will begin June 16, continuing through July 11. Sessions will be held from 1:30 to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays in the University School Auditorium. Four quarter hours of college credit will be granted for successful completion of the course.

At Yale since 1928, Dr. Brubacher has been a visiting professor in Lebanon, Japan, and at several American universities, including Johns Hopkins, California, and Michigan. He has headed two yearbook committees for the National Society for the Study of Education.

Among his books are "Modern Philosophies of Education" and "History of the Problems of Education". He is editor of "The Public School and Spiritual Values".

CARBONDALE, ILL., APRIL -- A Southern Illinois University faculty musician whose quintet composition was played last week in Carnegie Hall will have another of his works featured May 3 during the annual Festival of American Music at the Eastman School of Music.

Will Gay Bottje's "Quintet for Flute and Strings", selected earlier this year for performance at the American Composers' Conference, was played Saturday (April 19) in New York on a National Association of Composers and Conductors program.

On May 3, Bottje's "Theme and Variations for Band" will be performed during the Eastman School of Music event in Rochester, N.Y. Two other compositions for band and woodwind quintet will be featured in concerts during SIU's current Festival of Fine Arts.

Bottje came to SIU last September after serving two years in the University of Mississippi music department. He received the first Doctor of Musical Arts degree in composition ever awarded by the Eastman School of Music. Previously he studied at the Juilliard School of Music in New York, the Royal Conservatory of Music in Amsterdam, and with Mlle, Nadia Boulanger in Paris.

Carbondale, Illinois -- A leading authority on higher education predicts that enrollment in the nation's colleges and universities will be at least tripled within the next 20 years.

Dr. Francis Horn, a distinguished visiting professor at Southern Illinois University, says there will be at least nine million students in colleges and universities by 1978.

Horn believes that nearly 500 new colleges will be established by that time...and that two years of college will become about as universal as a high school education today.

Dr. Horn is serving on the S-I-U faculty until June, when he will become president of the University of Rhode Island.

#####

Carbondale, Illinois -- The current economic recession will be among topics discussed at a Marketing Symposium at Southern Illinois University next Friday.

Among other subjects to be aired at the meeting will be credit, new developments in monetary policy, and trading stamps.

CARBONDALE, ILL., April -- At least nine million students will be attending American colleges and universities within 20 years, tripling the present enrollment, predicts a leading authority on higher education at Southern Illinois University.

"New facilities, more effective utilization of existing facilities, and improved teaching methods" will absorb this tremendous surge of students, says Dr. Francis H. Horn, SIU visiting distinguished professor of higher education.

Dr. Horn, who will leave Southern in June to become president of the University of Rhode Island, also estimates that by 1978 nearly 500 new colleges will have been established throughout the nation.

The educator takes issue with those who would solve the problem of increasing college enrollments by educating only the intellectually superior.

"College opportunities cannot be confined to the top quarter of our population," he contends. "The modern world requires a general upgrading of our educational system. Two years of college should become about as universal as a high school education today."

Dr. Horn believes that eventually most state universities and some large urban universities will give up their lower divisions, utilizing their facilities for upper division and graduate students.

"I see only the traditional residential liberal arts college continuing unchanged the present four-year pattern," he says. Dr. Horn called the major problem facing higher education "finding educators and lay leaders who really understand today's world and the new world that is in the making".

A former president of Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, Dr. Horn also has been executive secretary of the Association for Higher Education and dean of McCoy College, the evening division of the Johns Hopkins University. He joined the SIU faculty last September.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- English teachers meeting at Southern Illinois University have adopted three resolutions aimed at improving standards in Southern Illinois high schools.

The teachers adopted some minimum educational requirements for students studying to be English teachers ...and they agreed that high school teachers of English -- except in small schools -- should have their college major in English.

Another resolution forwarded to the National Council of Teachers of English stipulates that the maximum daily teaching load for high school English teachers should be four classes and 100 students.

#####

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Another tornado drill for Southern Illinois -- similar to one held in March -- is slated for May 7th. A. Frank Bridges of Southern Illinois University, area civil defense coordinator, says two light planes flying northeast from Cairo and Chester will simulate tornadoes.

More than 30 towns will cooperate in the drill -- which will test the storm warning communications network in Southern Illinois.

Carbondale, Illinois -- A Southern Illinois University student has found what may be the answer to an old problem: How to remove unwanted species of fish from a body of water.

The answer supplied by zoology student Walter Bridges of DeSoto is sodium cyanide -- in the same deadly pellets used in the gas chamber. Results of tests Bridges has been conducting are reported in a special bulletin just published by the Department of the Interior.

Bridges puts the poison pellets in a burlap bag and drags them behind a motor boat. Within a few minutes, fish begin popping to the surface. Desirable fish can be gathered up quickly and transferred to non-toxic water, where they quickly recover from all effects of the poison.

The nice thing about it is that the small dosage of cyanide necessary produces little danger to domestic animals or humans ...and desirable fish can be returned to the poisoned water after three or four days without further harm.

Another advantage of this new method is the cost. Sixty-eight cents worth of cyanide will enable fish management people to remove unwanted fish from a whole acre of water.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April --The Marion construction firm of A.M. Norman and Son is the apparent low bidder on a 10-unit apartment housing development at Southern Illinois University.

The apartment project, planned for 160 SIU staff families, is part of a housing construction program to come from $4,000,000 in available funds. Bids on 15 small residence halls for single students, the other half of the program, will be opened May 13.

Norman's general construction bid of $1,248,500 was the lowest of three opened here Tuesday (April 29). Official action on it will be taken by the SIU Board of Trustees after reviewing the residence hall bids in May.

Industrial Contractors of Evansville, Ind., was apparent low bidder on heating, plumbing, and other phases of the apartment project at a total of $923,900. The Hubbard Electric Co. of Decatur submitted the lowest bid for electrical work at $175,750.

Carbondale, Illinois---Southern Illinois University has just released its 1958 football schedule, which includes six home games. Among these are a November 1st Homecoming clash with Washington and Lee. Other non-conference foes on the schedule are Evansville College and West Virginia State College.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- A Burmese government official will wind up a three-day visit in Southern Illinois Wednesday (May 7).

He is U Kogyi (YOU KOH-gee), director-general of the Land and Road Development Corporation at Rangoon. His office is comparable to that of a cabinet member in this country.

As a guest of Southern Illinois University, the visitor toured the University's School of Agriculture and test farms. He also studied community development programs which S-I-U helped establish in Cobden and Pope County.

#####

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- About forty area P-T-A leaders will attend a Parent Education Planning Conference at Southern Illinois University Wednesday (May 7).

Speakers will include Miss Anna Carol Fults, chairman of the S-I-U Home Economics Education Department, and Mrs. George Carty of Marion.

The meeting will be conducted in the Agriculture Lounge.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Southern Illinois University's Carver Shannon will attempt to break his own 100-yard dash record in a track meet with Eastern Illinois at Charleston Saturday (May 10).

Running on the same track last year, the S-I-U sprinter set a new record for Southern with a time of nine and eight-tenths seconds. Bradley University won the eight-team State College meet. Southern came in fourth, losing to Eastern by only four points.

In baseball, league-leading S-I-U meets Washington University at home Saturday. The Salukis have lost only one game in conference play.

Southern's golfers meet Evansville College at Evansville Friday, and the Saluki tennis team plays home matches with Murray State Wednesday and Concordia Seminary Saturday.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Southern Illinois' most lavish outdoor event of the year -- the Southern Illinois Music Festival -- will be presented Saturday night.

More than 35-hundred grade and high school musicians will be performing in massed choral and band units. Also on the program will be a 160-piece symphony orchestra, and a band of madrigal singers.

Featured soloist will be Thomas L. Thomas, widely-known concert baritone. Other soloists in the spotlight at Southern Illinois University's McAndrew Stadium will be Soprano Frances Carvell of Salem, and a 15-year-old Harrisburg pianist, George Dennis. Dennis and Mrs. Carvell were named last Saturday to represent the area this summer at Chicagoland Music Festival.

The program at S-I-U Saturday night, scheduled to begin at 7:30, was planned as a memorial to the late Floyd Wakeland of Southern Illinois University -- who started the Southern Illinois Music Festival nine years ago.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May--Ruins of ancient habitation on a hillside near Durango City, Mexico, will be the summer classroom for 12 students who have enrolled in the Southern Illinois University Museum's fourth biennial anthropological field session in Mexico.

SIU Museum Instructor Howard Winters, who will supervise the field work, says the group expects to complete excavation at the Schroeder site 12 miles from Durango City and start work on two other archaeological sites during the summer session. Two former field sessions have been held at the Schroeder site, where much pottery and other artifacts of the ancient Chalchihuites culture have been recovered.

Students will arrive at Durango June 30 and work until August 8, earning six quarter hours of graduate or undergraduate college credit for the course. Dr. J. Charles Kelley, SIU Museum director on leave for research and study in Mexico, will head the field session.

Two other students accompanying the group will work with Dr. Carroll Riley, SIU assistant professor, on an ethnological study of contemporary Tephuwan Indian culture in the mountainous area west of Durango. They will observe material culture, social system, religion, and folklore of the inhabitants.

Working with Riley will be Miss Carmen M. Trujillo, University of New Mexico student from El Rito, New Mexico, and John Hobgood, SIU graduate student from Mexico City, Mexico.

Students from SIU and other U.S. universities who have enrolled in the SIU summer field session in Mexico are:

(Current SIU students) CARBONDALE: Mrs. Ellen Abbott Hannen.
CARTERVILLE: John W. Newberry (Southern Acres resident).
EAST ALTON: John W. Goodhart (325 Westerheldt Ave.).
EAST ST. LOUIS: Edward S. Trebbe (922 Natalie).
GRANITE CITY: John S. Korcsog (2331 East 25th).
LITCHFIELD: Raymond L. Simmons (1126 North Franklin).

CARBONDALE, Ill., May --A top experimental physicist at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory will lecture to students, faculty physicists and the public during a two-day visit to Southern Illinois University May 26 and 27.

Dr. Richard Taschek's engagement will be sponsored by the American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Institute of Physics as part of a broad national nationwide program to stimulate interest in physics. While at SIU he will present a public lecture, "The Place of Science in Today's Culture." The time and place will be announced.

Taschek, a group leader and alternate division leader in the Los Alamos experimental physics section, formerly worked on the isotron project of the National Defense Research Committee at Princeton University. He has served as chairman of the AEC's Nuclear Cross Sections advisory group. He holds degrees from the University of Wisconsin and the University of Florida.

Taschek will assist SIU faculty members with curriculum and research problems.

CARBONDALE, ILL., MAY -- Some 225 students, the cream of Southern Illinois University's scholastic crop, will be recognized for high academic achievement at the annual Honors Day ceremonies here May 22.

Included in the group to receive awards in a 10 a.m. student convocation at Shryock Auditorium will be 76 graduating seniors. Another group of 50 students will receive special scholarships and awards from organizations, industry and private donors including such honors as the Phi Beta Kappa prize, Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society Awards, Ohio Oil Company Scholarship and others.

Dr. John Grinnell, dean of the SIU College of Education, will speak to the students on "The Utmost Bond." President Delyte W. Morris and Dr. Charles Tenney, vice president, will make the awards.

To be eligible for Honors Day recognition, students must have maintained a scholastic average of 4.25 (a five-point average is equivalent to straight "A"). Three juniors and four seniors will be cited for averages between 4.9 and the all-but-impossible five-point. The juniors are Marilyn Sue Foster of Carbondale; Ivan Marie Loucks of Sesser and Charles Wade of Griggsville. Seniors in the elite group are Carla Coffay of Granite City (2509A Grand); George Randolph Hand of Carbondale; Sylvia Sue Wiggins of Kirkwood, Mo., (822 Thornberry Lane); and Martha Jean Ferrill of Cobden.

Special scholarship and awards winners are not announced until the convocation.

CARBONDALE, ILL., May --Opening of new electrical, strength-of-materials, and mechanics laboratories at Southern Illinois University will make possible additional courses in the present applied science program, according to Dr. Ralph O. Gallington, acting head of Applied Science and chairman of the SIU Industrial Education Department.

The supplemented program will provide as much as four years of work in general applied science. In addition to meeting present general requirements of the University, the program will provide courses in dynamics, metallurgy, electricity and electronics, surveying, strength of materials, mechanics of various kinds, structural design, engineering drawing, design of machine elements, and other technical courses.

To benefit pre-engineering students and others interested in these fields of study, Gallington also announced an expanded program in applied science for the University's summer term, beginning June 17. Included will be two courses in engineering drawing, two in surveying, two in analytical mechanics (dynamics), and one in analytical mechanics (statics).

Spring term SIU students in applied science now are using a new electrical laboratory equipped for many types of testing procedures with direct and alternating current, and with low-voltage direct current from storage batteries. Major laboratory equipment includes a central switchboard with panels for supply and distribution of current, four motor-generator stations, two dynamometer stations, eight stations for bench tests with alternating and direct current, and a number of portable units.

In use also is a new strength-of-materials laboratory with its major equipment item, a 300,000-pounds capacity hydraulic universal testing machine for finding compression and tension qualities of materials. Also installed are machines for testing the impact, hardness, and torsion qualities of materials.

In the process of being equipped is a mechanics laboratory which the University hopes to have ready for use by the opening of the 1958 fall term. (Chrysler Motor Corporation and General Motors each has contributed an automobile engine for this laboratory.)

Carbondale, Illinois---Southern Illinois University's baseball, track and golf teams all will be matched against their counterparts from Illinois Normal University next weekend (May 16-17). A three-game baseball series and a two-day golf meet will be held at Normal. The S-I-U track squad will entertain Normal at Carbondale Saturday afternoon.

In baseball, Southern is currently leading the Interstate Conference with a six and one record.

Also next weekend, the Saluki tennis team will be in St. Louis, playing Washington U Friday and St. Louis University Saturday.

CARBONDALE, ILL., May -- Southern Illinois University's athletic teams expect to have a very "Normal" time this week end (May 16-17) with six events against foes from Illinois State Normal University.

Most important of the clashes will be a three-game baseball series at Normal Friday (May 16) and Saturday (May 17). Currently leading the Interstate Conference with a 6-1 record, Southern will start its three top hurlers--Ron Ayers, Flora; John Gillmore, Odin; and Gerald Thomas, Sycamore.

Other probable starters for SIU will be Richard Jones, Herrin, second base; Gerald Marting, Overland, Mo., shortstop; Roger Buyan, Dowell, third base; Fred Loesekam, St. Louis (3941 Reavis Bks. Rd), right field; Richard Dillinger, Dupo, first base; Carroll Bridges, Du Quoin, left field; Anthony (Buddy) Velasco, Christopher, center field; and J. W. Sanders, Mt. Vernon, catcher.

Southern's golf team, current holder of a 9-1-1 record, meets Illinois Normal in matches there Friday (May 16) and Saturday (May 17), while the SIU track squad entertains Normal in a meet on Southern's track here at 1:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon (May 17).

On the tennis front, Southern's netsters will spend the week end in St. Louis, playing Washington University Friday (May 16) and St. Louis University Saturday (May 17).

In addition to seeking a Saluki victory, several SIU thinclads will be after new all-time SIU marks. Marion Rushing, Pinckneyville, will be out to better his javelin record of 195-11½ set last month, while Carver Shannon, Corinth, Miss., will be out to beat his new SIU record of :09.8 in the 100-yard dash.

Others not too far away from records are Jack Souers, West Frankfort, who is after the 13-3½ pole vault mark, and Dale Gleghorn, Sparta, who hopes to better the :23.9 record in the 220 low hurdles.

Next week end (May 23-24), Southern's track, golf, and tennis teams will close their seasons with Interstate Conference meets at Illinois Normal.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May --A spit-and-polish Air Force colonel has been named by students the most popular faculty member at Southern Illinois University.

The results of a student poll so astonished Col. Alexander MacMillan, commanding officer of the Air Force ROTC cadet corps at Southern, that he almost saluted the civilian student who gave him the award.

In scoring a direct hit with students, Col. MacMillan beat a woman's P.E. instructor, a botanist, a political scientist and a health educator.

A West Point product (class of 1920), "Colonel Mac," as he is known to students and out-of-uniform cadets, served with the old Coast Artillery Corps until 1926, resigned his commission to enter industry, then re-entered service at the outbreak of World War II. He organized the Air Force Inspector General School and has been Inspector General of the Air Training Command and the Air Force in England. He took over the 1,400-man cadet unit at SIU in 1954.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May --Methods of improving economic education in elementary and high schools will be discussed in a two-week workshop for teachers and school administrators this summer at Southern Illinois University.

Sponsored by the SIU departments of economics and secondary education, the course will be conducted Monday through Friday from July 28 through Aug. 8. Students who successfully complete the course will receive four quarter hours of college credit.

Purpose of the workshop is to develop classroom procedures in economic education which will improve pupils' understanding of the American free enterprise system, according to Dr. Gordon Brunhild, SIU assistant professor of economics, who will be a director.

During the morning sessions, SIU economists will lecture on such topics as national income, economic growth, savings, taxation, and government expenditures. The roles played by business, labor, agriculture and the consumer in the nation's economy also will be explained.

In the afternoons, Glenn Ogle, teacher of economics and American problems at Webster Groves, Mo., High School, will show how the lecture material can be used in teaching elementary and high school pupils.

Guest lecturers will include Edgar Peske, assistant vice-president of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, and Dr. Ernst Dauer, economist for the Household Finance Corporation. Both are from Chicago.

Applications are now being accepted by Dr. Brunhild for 20 tuition awards for the workshop. Southern Illinois business, agricultural, and labor organizations are providing the stipends.

Carbondale, Illinois--Students planning to teach vocational agriculture may now receive all four years of their training at Southern Illinois University.

Certification of S-I-U's School of Agriculture for the program has been granted by the U-S Office of Education in Washington.

In the past, students preparing to teach agriculture were required to transfer to the University of Illinois or some out-of-state institution after receiving two or three years of work at Southern.

The action makes Illinois the 19th state in which more than one institution may train vocational agriculture teachers.

S-I-U began offering bachelor of science degrees in agriculture three years ago.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May -- Both day camping and overnight camping programs for mentally retarded children will be conducted this summer at the Southern Illinois University Camp on Little Grassy Lake southeast of Carbondale.

The Egyptian Association for Mentally Retarded Children is sponsoring the project in cooperation with SIU's Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education. Students at Southern will serve as counselors, as they have for the past three summers.

Four weeks of day camping in two-week sessions will begin for the mentally retarded June 30, according to Anthony W. Blass, Carbondale, chairman of the camping committee. Each session will be limited to 15 children.

The resident camp will be conducted for six weeks in two-week sessions, beginning July 7. No more than 10 boys and 10 girls will be accepted for each session.

Blass said parents must submit camp applications by June 7. Additional information may be obtained from Blass, assistant to the director, SIU Physical Plant, or at the Association office at Southern Acres near Carterville.

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILLINOIS -- Governor William Stratton will officially open a Beautification Week in East St. Louis June 14th. Some 200 clean-up, fix-up projects are planned during the week.

The governor will ride in a parade the afternoon of the 14th...and will visit a Home Show where local merchants will display products geared to property improvement. The Beautification Week will be sponsored by Community Progress, Incorporated --a civic group spearheading a community development campaign with the aid of Southern Illinois University. #####

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- The dean of Southern Illinois University's College of Education says today's schools are open to criticism for two major reasons --over-emphasis on sports and failure to stimulate gifted students.

Dean John E. Grinnell also told the Educational Council of 100 that some Southern Illinois high schools have begun to adopt what is called the "three track" system of education. Under this plan, used widely in the Chicago area, students are ranked in lower, average and upper categories on the basis of test scores. Those above and below average are then singled out for special attention.

CARBONDALE, ILL., MAY -- A newspaper publisher from southern India who is fighting an editorial battle with the Communists controlling his state will visit Southern Illinois University next week.

He is Krishnam Krishnam, whose English language daily newspaper, the Express, is published in Trichur, Kerala State.

A participant in the State Department's International Educational Exchange Program, Krishnam will lecture to SIU journalism classes Monday and Tuesday (May 26-27) and speak at a special Journalism Students Association assembly on Wednesday (May 28). He also will address the Carbondale Rotary Club.

In the latter part of the week, the Indian editor will study SIU's community development program and visit area newspaper offices.

Although Krishnam established his newspaper only eight years ago, it now has the third largest circulation in Kerala State. He also conducts a school in classical forms of the Dance of India, a project designed to offset a Communist-supported program of providing cultural activities for children. The Kerala State government is presently controlled by Communists.

Krishnam already has visited the Institute of International Education in Chicago and the University of Pittsburgh. From SIU, he will go to St. Louis, where he will be a guest of the St. Louis Council on World Affairs, and to Columbia, Mo., where he will visit the Missouri School of Journalism. He will travel to the West Coast, then back to Washington, before returning home.

CARBONDALE, ILL., MAY -- Two young Benton debaters at Southern Illinois University have been initiated into a national honorary society and elected officers of the campus chapter, all in the same ceremony.

Gailverne Kopp and Keith Sanders, outstanding newcomers to Coach Walter Murrish's debate squad last season, were elected secretary-treasurer and vice-president of the SIU chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, honorary forensics society, soon after they were accepted as members in ceremonies here Saturday (May 17). Gary Bengston, a Rockford (225 Logan) sophomore, was elected president.

Sanders, who won 25 matches and lost only five during the 1957-58 season, also won a trophy as top freshman debater. Regina Miller of Du Quoin, who won 49 and lost 14, capturing three trophies, was named outstanding sophomore debater. Her teammate Marsha Wiehn, also of Du Quoin, captured the junior title while Ted Foster of Mt. Vernon, with a 40-15 record, was crowned the leading senior.

Other newly elected members of the society were Jan Fegley of Battle Creek, Mich. (160 Adams Rd.) and Dorothy Lingle of Carbondale. Dr. Milton Edelman, SIU associate professor of economics, was elected to honorary membership as a faculty member who "contributed most during the year in assisting the debate squad to promote the ideals of Pi Kappa Delta."

CARBONDALE, Ill., May -- Apparent low bids totaling $2,810,133 have been submitted for construction of 15 small residence halls for single students at Southern Illinois University.

Opened Tuesday (May 20) at the SIU Architect's Office, the bids represent the second half of a twofold family and student housing project to be partially financed by a Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency loan. Construction bids for a 10-unit family apartment housing project were opened last month.

SIU Architect Charles Pulley said a recommendation on all bids will be made to the SIU Board of Trustees following a June conference with Housing and Home Finance Agency officials in Washington.

The J.L. Simmons Company of Decatur was apparent low bidder Tuesday on the general construction contract at $2,107,100. The Ideal Heating Company of Chicago submitted a low heating and ventilating bid of $257,333, while Fowler Plumbing and Heating of Centralia tendered a low bid of $445,700 for plumbing work. The Carbondale Electric Company's $258,500 bid was the lowest received for electrical work.

Industrial Contractors of Evansville, Ind., submitted a package estimate for combined plumbing, heating and ventilation of $742,250.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May -- "Man's Ultimate Commitment," by Henry N. Wieman, a summation of a lifetime of thought on mankind's course of progress, will be published Thursday (May 22) by the Southern Illinois University Press ($5.95).

Dr. Wieman, a visiting professor of philosophy at SIU, is considered one of the nation's leading theologians. He is an emeritus professor of the University of Chicago Divinity School, where he taught philosophy of religion for 20 years. He holds three doctorate degrees, has written a number of books on religion and philosophy, and also has taught at Occidental College, Grinnell College, the University of Houston, and the University of Oregon.

In this latest book Dr. Wieman deals with matters crucial to interpreting religious faith and living. His original treatment gives the book an "unusual position in contemporary religious thought." In it he proposes and develops his concept of "creative interchange," which he says is the necessary attribute that man must possess if he is to be saved from evil and to be led to the best that human life can attain.

Such interchange, says Wieman, creates a common understanding through which a person can express his individuality and in so doing find himself sustained and enriched by like expression of others.

By probing into such current problems as the intention of atomic scientists, over-population, the East-West conflict, and other perils of society, he says, we come to understand the urgent necessity for deciding on our ultimate commitment as individuals and as members of social institutions.

The book is written in opposition to contemporaries who deny that any universal standard can be found for judging the best way of life for man.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May -- William Berry, liberal arts sophomore from Paxton, was chosen student body president Tuesday (May 20) in an annual election at Southern Illinois University. Jerry Feezel, Wood River (711 E. Ferguson), was elected vice-president. Their one-year terms of office will begin next September.

In other voting, Patricia Dey, Carbondale, was elected chairman of the 1958 SIU Homecoming.

Earlier this month, students at Southern adopted a new constitution. The new form of government consists of a student senate, an executive committee, and a judicial board.

Other students elected to office for the 1958-59 school year, listed by home towns, are:

ALTON: Yvonne Anton (1710 Clawson), junior class president; James Connell (1115 Diamond), fraternity senator
CANTON: Joseph Sepich (941 S. 3rd), Southern Acres senator

MAY 24 1958

CARBONDALE, Ill., May -- A new twist will be applied to the often-dramatized life of Abraham Lincoln in a Southern Illinois University student's experimental stage production here Wednesday (May 28).

"Lincoln in Letters," an idea of Carbondale Graduate Student Tom Sill, will feature dramatic readings of letters to and from Lincoln. Narration by Joe Embser, Benton student, will bind the readings together. The free public performance will begin at 8 p.m. in the Southern Playhouse.

Peter Morris, son of SIU President Delyte W. Morris and a speech student at Southern, will play the part of Lincoln. Other Lincoln correspondents to be represented will include Generals Hooker and McClellan; Mrs. Bixby, whose letter concerned the war deaths of her five sons; Mary Owens, Lincoln's first girl friend and John Wilkes Booth.

Other cast members include Darwin Payne and Margaret Ritchie of Carbondale; Bennie Jackson of Mt. Vernon; Dorothy Beck of Winchester; Jerry Henderson, Nashville, Tenn., and Joseph Miller of Murray, Ky..

The hour-long performance will be staged with few props and only "suggestive" costuming. Historically, it will begin on the day Lincoln assumed duties as postmaster at New Salem and end on the day of his assassination.

The experiment is part of Sill's master's degree project which deals with the oral reading of letters.

Release: IMMEDIATE

Carbondale, Ill., May -- Next month, for the first time, Southern Illinois University will confer an honorary degree on an industrialist. He is a man whose name is symbolic of the kind of industry Southern Illinois, and scores of other areas, are trying desperately to woo and win.

The degree candidate is Spencer T. Olin, a director of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation and son of the man who developed an industrial empire from a small powder mill at East Alton.

Around the original mill there are now a complex of plants manufacturing ammunition, explosives, brass and non-ferrous alloys, traps, clay targets and other products.

Spencer Olin and his brother, John, worked side by side with their father as he diversified his business interests from coal mine blasting powder to cartridges, bullets and, finally, rifles. Olin Industries also got into batteries and natural gas, fine papers and packaging. Since its merger with the Mathieson Chemical Corporation in 1954, the company has grown to giant proportions in many new fields, including aluminum, pharmaceuticals and rocket fuels.

All the diversity Southern Illinois towns and cities are seeking in their industrial development efforts is represented within the corporate structure of this one company. Olin Mathieson makes everything from anesthetic ether to anti-freeze, from cellophane and chemicals to sporting arms and ammunition.

The corporation now has more than 44,000 employees in over 70 plants and 200 offices throughout the world. Sales last year amounted to nearly $600 million.

Said Southern Illinois University President D. W. Morris, after a faculty committee nominated Spencer Olin to receive an honorary degree June 15:

"It is very appropriate that the University should pay tribute to an outstanding industrialist like Mr. Olin. The Olin family has made tremendous contributions to the economic life of this region, and we feel confident that the ever-growing Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation will have a very prominent role in the industrial future of Southern Illinois."

SIU's Residence Center at what was formerly Shurtleff College is near the company's East Alton plants, and Olin Mathieson recently opened several new facilities within a short drive of the SIU Carbondale campus. At a former Army Ordnance Depot between Marion and Herrin, the company now has a plant manufacturing explosives for the mining, construction and petroleum industries, nitric acid and nitrate fertilizer. There is also a laboratory for research in solid propellant fuels used in rockets and missiles. A few miles away is a proving ground for rocket propellants developed at the research center.

Born at Alton, 57 year-old Spencer Olin was an officer and active in the management of the Olin company's plants in various executive capacities at East Alton from 1921 to 1954. During World War II, the brass mill there produced more cartridge metal than any other mill in the nation, and the company staffed and operated the $300 million government installation in St. Louis commonly known as the Small Arms Plant.

When Olin properties, including the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., were consolidated, and the company was renamed Olin Industries, Inc., Spencer Olin was made first vice president. Following the merger with Mathieson, he became a director and member of the executive board. His brother, John, was the first chairman of the board of directors and is now chairman of the Financial and Operating Policy Committee.

Spencer Olin is also a director of three banks, Owens-Illinois Glass Co., Laclede Steel Co., Illinois Bell Telephone, and the East Alton Public Service Co. An avid hunter, he is planning a big-game expedition to Africa following the SIU commencement.

CARBONDALE, ILL., MAY -- The role of the teacher in the Parent-Teacher Association will be discussed at a third annual workshop for student teachers Monday (June 2) at Southern Illinois University.

Speakers will be Dr. Edward Stullken, Oak Park, principal of Montefiore Special Schools, and Dr. John E. Grinnell, dean of the SIU College of Education.

Nearly 200 SIU students who have been practice teaching at University School and area schools this spring will attend the meeting, which will be held in Furr Auditorium. The program was arranged by Dr. Charles D. Neal, director of teacher training, and Mrs. George Carty, Marion, chairman of the Parent and Family Life Education Committee, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Topics for group discussions will include "What the Teacher May Expect of PTA" and "Abuses That Have Taken Place in the Name of PTA". Discussion leaders will be Mrs. Carty; Mrs. J.A. Petrazio, Murphysboro; Mrs. Jacob O. Bach, Carbondale; Mrs. Zollie Summers, West Frankfort; Mrs. Edwin Greene, Centralia (1312 Dover St.); and Dr. Herbert Smith, SIU.

Carterville Elementary School PTA members will present a skit. At the final session, Dr. Jacob O. Bach, SIU director of Educational Research Services, will evaluate the workshop.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May -- Southern Illinois University's department of design will show off its new space, present an end-of-the-year exhibit by advanced students and give the first midwest showing of a major typographic design exhibition in an open house beginning here June 7.

The exhibitions, to run concurrently, will open with a 2:30 p.m. reception in the department's new home located on the second floor of the SIU Library.

Only three years old, the SIU design department now numbers some 130 full-time students. Formerly scattered among classrooms, drafting laboratories and shops in six temporary and permanent buildings, including one built by students themselves, the entire department now is housed under one roof for the first time.

Sponsored by the Type Directors Club of New York, the typography exhibit will include the Club's fourth annual award winners as well as a special collection of work by international designers. The show has been hung previously in the World Affairs Center in New York City and is now being exhibited at the Time-Life Galleries in Rockefeller Plaza.

Including the year's outstanding examples of graphic designs as related to mass communication, the show was obtained by Herbert Roan, lecturer in visual design at SIU, who is a member of the New York club.

The annual student exhibit will feature completed work in product-shelter and visual design research, ranging from complete scale models of city redevelopment projects to greeting cards.

(RELEASE SUNDAY, JUNE 1)

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Today (Sunday) is the opening of National Youth Fitness Week .. and a Southern Illinois University physical education specialist says young people give their bodies plenty of "exercise"--but not enough proper conditioning.

Dr. Jay Bender -- director of a new Physical Fitness Laboratory at Southern-- says boys and girls -- as well as adults -- need exercises tailor-made to benefit the muscles they don't ordinarily use.

Even some of the most active young people neglect certain muscles. Bender says...and this eventually leads to stooped shoulders and other postural defects. Failure to use the muscles often enough causes them to atrophy, according to Bender and this brings on the aches and pains so common in adults over 30.

Bender also points out that sports and rugged exercises are not necessary to keep the body fit. To exercise muscles means merely to use them. At the present time, Bender is heading a program to show boys in the University School at Carbondale how to use muscles properly in their daily routine.

National Youth Fitness Week, set by President Eisenhower, runs through June 7th.

CARBONDALE, ILL., JUNE -- Bill Jenkins of Crab Orchard and Richard Small of Princeton are the new intramural debate champions of Southern Illinois University.

The two teamed to post a championship decision over Geraldine Hise of Ridgway and Kenneth Martin of Carbondale in the finals of the third annual event at SIU Tuesday (May 27).

Both teams advanced to the finals by surviving four rounds of preliminary competition. Trophies were presented by Vernal Beckman, graduate assistant in forensics and coach of the winners. Ray Canterbury of Mt. Morris, a member of SIU's varsity debate squad, coached the losers.

The competition was open to undergraduates who had not participated in intercollegiate debate. The proposition, that "the Federal government should subsidize the higher education of superior students," was argued affirmatively by the winners.

Small was named outstanding individual debater of the entire tournament, while Miss Hise took the second place award.

Cobden, Ill., June -- Tiny Cobden is going to try to build a $25,000 medical center as a means of persuading another doctor to start a practice here.

The only doctor this community of 1,100 has now is 78 years old. A second local physician died last year.

A recent survey by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation showed that 28 people from Cobden require medical attention each day, and they travel an average of 26 miles to see a doctor. The survey indicated that a new doctor in town would have more than 8,000 office visits by patients a year.

The Community Development Council called in Norman H. Davis, Chicago, director of the medical assistance section of the Sears Foundation, to explain at a town meeting last week how Cobden could participate in a Foundation program for attracting physicians to small towns.

Davis recommended that Cobden build a medical center by public subscription. The Foundation will supply the blueprints without charge and will work through the American Medical Association to obtain at least one doctor. The doctor could sign a lease-purchase agreement with the community on the building.

Three-hundred townspeople attending the meeting to hear Davis voted to seek $25,000 for a building plan which would accommodate two doctors, or a doctor and a dentist. The center would have built-in furniture, cabinets and file cases so a new doctor would have to bring in only his own equipment.

The town's search for a doctor grew out of recommendations made in a community development program Cobden has been conducting with the aid of Southern Illinois University for three years. The Sears Foundation medical assistance program, started last February, is currently being offered in 25 towns across the country.

Carbondale, Illinois --- Southern Illinois University will award honorary degrees next week to an industrialist and a distinguished journalist.

An honorary doctor of science degree will be conferred at commencement exercises a week from Sunday on Spencer T. Olin, a member of the board of Olin Mathieson Corporation. At the same time, an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters will be awarded to Irving Dilliard of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch editorial page staff.

Dilliard, who has been with the Post-Dispatch since 1929, supervised publication of German newspapers following World War II...and was military governor of Bavaria. Spencer Olin worked closely with his father in building a small powder mill at East Alton into a huge industrial empire -- manufacturing everything from rifles and ammunition to aluminum and cellophane.

Carbondale, Illinois --- Some of the nation's top rehabilitation experts will discuss modern-day approaches to age-old problems of the handicapped at a Southern Illinois University conference.

The "Rehab" specialists will be on the campus from June 16th to the 27th to hear from prominent medical men, psychiatrists, speech correctionists, and others. There will also be a series of four public lectures during the conference -- on tuberculosis, geriatrics, psychiatry, and alcoholism and drug addiction.

CARBONDALE, ILL., June -- A widely known Dallas (Tex.) speaker and civic leader will give the main address at a Hospital Accounting Conference on the Southern Illinois University campus, June 11.

"No Accounting for Some People" will be the subject of a 6 p.m. banquet address by Melvin T. Munn, a hospital insurance company public relations director who is noted throughout the Southwest as an active campaigner for community and civic groups ranging from the Boy Scouts to the Dallas Council of Churches. The banquet will be given in the Thompson Point Service Building, site of the three-day (June 10-12) Conference.

Sponsored by SIU's Division of Technical and Adult Education, the Illinois Hospital Association and the American Association of Hospital Accountants, the Conference is aimed at promoting better accounting and book work in Illinois hospitals. Hospital and clinic business staffers from all over Illinois are expected.

Munn, a onetime director of religious education for the First Methodist Church of Longview, (Tex.) served for 10 years in the transit department of a large Dallas bank. In 1950 he became a special events and feature announcer for a Dallas radio-television station. He joined Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Texas as administrative director in 1953.

An active member of Kiwanis International and its Key Clubs organizations for teenage boys, Munn was honored in 1954 when Key Clubbers in Oklahoma and Texas established an annual award in his name. The "Melvin T. Munn Award" is given annually to the outstanding Key Club member in the two states. He was given the International Key of Honor in 1955, the seventh adult to be so honored in 30 years.

CARBONDALE, ILL., JUNE -- More persons than ever are expected to participate in Southern Illinois University's outdoor education program this summer, according to Dr. William H. Freeberg, chairman of the SIU Recreation and Outdoor Education Department.

To meet the surge of campers, University workmen are speeding up construction of a new area for handicapped children at the SIU Camp at Little Grassy Lake. Located across a small bay south of the normal children's camp, the development will include a therapy center, a split-level dining hall and two group living units. If the buildings are not completed in time, facilities at nearby Giant City State Park will be utilized.

The six-week camping season for normal and handicapped children will open June 29 under the supervision of Dr. Loren Taylor, outdoor education specialist. Robert Franz, assistant football coach, will direct recreational activities.

One-week sessions for normal boys and girls 9 to 14 years old will feature tent camping, including replicas of Indian tepees. Meals will be served in the large dining hall built of native stone.

For recreation, children will swim, ride horses, fish, go boating, and practice archery and handicrafts. Camp fee is $17.50 for each five-day period, according to William O'Brien, program director.

Four separate programs will be conducted for handicapped children under the direction of Don Raines, coach at Carbondale Community High School. Attending for two-week sessions, crippled children and--for the first time this year--blind youngsters will participate in a wide range of activities geared to their limitations. Sponsored jointly by SIU and the Southern Illinois Association for the Crippled, Inc. (Easter Seal agency), the camp accepts any physically handicapped child with the exception of extreme epileptic and cardiac cases.

Another program, which includes therapy, is available for children with speech and hearing handicaps. Southern will assist the Illinois Division of Services for Crippled Children in conducting the six-week camp.

For mentally retarded children, four weeks of day camping in two-week sessions will begin June 30. Each session is limited to 15 campers. The fourth program is a six-week resident camp for mentally retarded children, also in two-week sessions. No more than 10 boys and 10 girls will be accepted for each session.

The mentally retarded programs are sponsored by the Egyptian Association for Mentally Retarded Children in cooperation with SIU.

Several school groups and the state Girls Athletic Association already have participated in camping programs at the SIU Camp this spring. A Playground Leadership Training Institute is scheduled for June 11-14, a YMCA Indian Guide "Pow Wow" June 14-15, and a week's camp for underprivileged children Aug. 8-13.

In conjunction with recreational activities, 13 SIU departments have scheduled graduate and undergraduate courses at the camp during the Summer Session, Dr. Freeberg said. Among the courses are field biology, field geology, first aid, beginning photography, recreational music, water safety, child psychology, and speech correction.

The season will close with a new program -- four weeks of family camping, Aug. 17 through Sept. 13, sponsored by the Alumni Association. Weekly rates are $27.50 for adults and $22.50 for children.

A two-week pre-camp counselors training course for SIU students who will help conduct the camping programs will begin June 16. Students will receive college credit for camp counseling.

CARBONDALE, ILL., June -- Southern Illinois University's 84th annual Commencement will be partially streamlined to accommodate the largest graduating class in history, 848, and possibly the largest audience.

To begin at 7 p.m. in McAndrew Stadium, the formal ceremonies will be preceded by a 15-minute concert by the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra.

Graduates and faculty will be seated on the stadium field with the speakers' platform to be located near the south goalposts. Spectators will be seated in the stands on both sides of the field. In the past, all activity has taken place on the west edge of the field facing spectators in the west grandstand.

A near-capacity crowd is expected for the ceremonies which will feature an address by Gov. William G. Stratton. At least three radio stations (WJPF, Herrin, WRAJ, Anna, and WHCO, Sparta) will broadcast the speech.

Not all of the graduates will make the traditional walk across the commencement stage to receive their degrees. The Vocational-Technical Institute graduates will stand as a group and pick up their two-year degrees following the program.

CARBONDALE, ILL., June -- Employees of Southern Illinois business places will get some pointers on serving tourists at Southern Illinois University conferences on June 24 and June 26.

The same program will be repeated on the two days so that service stations, restaurants, hotels, motels, gift shops and other establishments can send half their working force to each session.

Donald Hileman, an SIU associate professor handling program arrangements, said Chamber of Commerce executives, city officials and others who deal with tourists also are expected to attend one of the Tourist Host Conferences.

Hileman said the afternoon program, starting at 2 p.m. in the University School's Studio Theater, would be concerned mainly with the duties of a good host. Films and slides of the area's principal tourist attractions will be shown in the evening.

A registration fee of $2.75 will include a steak dinner. Hileman said registrations must be submitted to the Tourist Host Conference, SIU Areas Services Office, before Monday, June 23.

The conferences will be sponsored jointly by the University, the Shawnee Hills Recreation Association, and organized tourist groups in Union, Jackson and Williamson Counties.

CARBONDALE, ILL., June -- Two special music workshops for elementary teachers and choral directors will be conducted during the summer session by Southern Illinois University's music department.

To be directed by faculty members Robert Thomas, Charles Taylor and Robert Hines, the choral workshop will include three special "laboratory" choruses for reading new music drill demonstrations, special techniques, and so on. Student registration fees for the June 23-27 workshop in the Library Auditorium will be $19.65 for Illinois residents. The course carries two hours of credit.

Miss Beulah Zander, Illinois Supervisor of Music Education, will conduct the Elementary Classroom Music Workshop, July 7-11, in Anthony Hall. The series is designed to introduce teachers to new classroom music materials, activities, rhythmic development and the integration of music in the classroom experience.

Total fees for resident students enrolling in the workshop will be $19.65.

Carbondale, Illinois--A southern Illinois University University coed will mark off the one-thousand-900-and-63rd day of her special calendar next week. That's the day Jan Johnson, a student from Batavia, receives her degree at University commencement exercises.

One day when she was a junior in high school, Jan made a sudden decision to go to college and major in physical education. So she made up a king-size calendar and crossed off each day that she came closer to her goal.

The calendar had spaces for one thousand-963 days. Oddly enough, the S-I-U commencement this year will be held on June 15th -- or exactly one thousand-963 days from the time Jan Johnson made up her calendar in 1952.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Southern Illinois University is girding for its most active commencement weekend -- two days of ceremony to be climaxed by the graduation of the largest class in S-I-U history.

Degrees will be conferred on some 848 students Sunday night. The commencement speaker, Governor William Stratton, will receive an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Southern. Other honorary degrees will be awarded to St. Louis newspaperman Irving Dilliard and Alton industrialist Spencer Olin.

Earlier on Sunday, Governor Stratton will lay the cornerstone of S-I-U's new two-million-dollar home economics building. And Saturday's University calendar is crowded with Alumni Day activities.

At the graduation exercises, eight veteran faculty members and an Edwardsville science teacher -- Joan Hunter -- will receive Distinguished Service Awards. An education professor -- Fount Warren -- will be honored for 45 years service -- the longest record yet achieved at Southern.

Another highlight of the commencement will be the awarding of a second lieutenant's commission to 20-year-old Carol Cockrum Walker of Carbondale. She is one of three coeds in the nation to be commissioned this year under a new Women's Air Force reserve officer training program.

CARBONDALE, Ill., June -- Three more temporary residence buildings will be erased from the Southern Illinois University campus map within the next seven weeks.

The SIU Architect's Office has sought bids for the "purchase and removal" of a two story house at 910 S. Illinois Ave. and two others at 821 and 909 S. University. All are located in an area bordering the new Home Economics Building site. The houses on University are headquarters of the SIU Personnel Office and Alumni Service. The Illinois Ave. house is an annex of the music department.

No arrangements for housing the displaced offices have been announced, although Altgeld Hall is being remodeled for the music department. The three structures affected are to be moved by July 25.

Sale of the three houses will bring to six the number of residences removed from the Home Economics Building construction area. Another house at 907 S. University is being used by construction officials working on the new building and will be the last to go.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., June -- A huge parade led by Gov. William Stratton will signal the opening of an action-packed Beautification Week here Saturday (June 14).

The parade and an address by the governor at a two-day Home Show will touch off a series of cleanup and improvement projects scheduled for East St. Louis and at least four other neighboring communities.

Boy Scouts, civic and service clubs, and labor organizations will clear vacant lots, beautify approaches to the city, plant flowers and build playgrounds. The Knights of Columbus will cooperate with city police in enforcing anti-litter ordinances.

The Saturday parade through the downtown district will follow a luncheon for the governor at the Broadview Hotel. Among the marching units will be a Scott Air Force Base contingent of nearly 300 men.

At the National Guard Armory, where the parade will end, Stratton will speak to guests at a Home Show put on by local merchants and contractors. Other speakers will include Rep. Melvin Price and Mayor Alvin Fields. Maj. Gen. Frederic E. Glantzberg, vice-commander of the Military Air Transport Service, and Col. William C. Armstrong, commander of Scott Air Force Base, also will take part in the ceremonies.

The Beautification Week is a project of Community Progress, Inc., which is currently working with Southern Illinois University's Department of Community Development on a long-range program for city improvement.

Next week, a number of block units will work on eliminating neighborhood eyesores. Each of 87 Boy Scout units will tackle the job of clearing weeded lots. Members of the Meat Packers Union will clear a tract of land near the Stockyards for a baseball diamond, and the East St. Louis Levee Board will construct four new diamonds on its property.

The Business and Professional Women's Club will provide service stations and drive-ins with litter bags for their customers. Democratic and Republican committeemen are cooperating to engineer neighborhood beautification projects. Throughout the week, all city trucks will be available for picking up trash and rub' ish.

Among communities joining the cleanup effort are Troy, Centreville, Fairmont City, and Caseyville.

CARBONDALE, ILL., June -- Timber management and utilization research at Southern Illinois University and in the downstate area will benefit from a $42,500 budget increase announced Thursday (June 12) by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen.

Dirksen informed SIU's Division of Area Services that the boost would come from an increased allocation to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, resulting from his efforts as a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The money would be used by the Carbondale Forest Research Center, a cooperative agency at SIU and the U.S. Forest Service. A Research Center official said he had not received an official breakdown on the increase, but that a major share of it probably would be used to expand operations of the Wood Products Pilot Plant at the SIU Vocational-Technical Institute.

A $250,000 installation operated jointly by SIU and the Forest Service, the plant has been investigating new uses--primarily in farm structures--for Southern Illinois hardwoods.

The Carbondale center also operates a timber management research program at the Kaskaskia Experimental Forest in Hardin County.

CARBONDALE, Ill., June 15 -- Governor William G. Stratton tonight (Sunday) told Southern Illinois University's largest graduating class that if U.S. political parties have a major failing, "it is the attempt by some within those parties to make them parties of segments, with the 'not welcome' sign displayed for persons with other interests."

Speaking to the 848 SIU degree candidates, Stratton challenged political parties to function in the "great American tradition of progress by compromise." He said the political party of today must become "a party eager to accept all, and to consider all shades of opinion in setting its own course."

Shortly after delivering the address, the governor was awarded the honorary Doctor of Laws degree by SIU President Delyte W. Morris. During the same ceremony honorary doctorates were conferred on Spencer T. Olin (Doctor of Science),^{East} Alton, industrialist, and Irving Dilliard (Doctor of Humane Letters) of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch editorial page staff.

Earlier today (Sunday), Stratton spoke at cornerstone laying ceremonies for Southern's new home economics building, with members of the SIU Board of Trustees, area legislators, and home economics and vocational officials in attendance.

Other speakers were: Dr. Robert Johns, Chicago, director of the Illinois Commission of Higher Education; Mrs. William Sauer, Murphysboro, representing the Illinois Agricultural Association; Judge Vera M. Binks, director of the Illinois Department of Registration and Education; Miss Lucy K. Woody, Carbondale, SIU emerita professor of home economics; John Page Wham, chairman of the SIU Board of Trustees; and President Morris. Dr. Eileen Quigley is dean of the School of Home Economics.

Although the governor has participated in dedication ceremonies for six new SIU building projects since taking office, Sunday's was the first major address he has given on the campus.

In an address stressing the theme of tolerance, Governor Stratton asked graduates to carry their greatest college-earned asset--"open mindedness"--into the world. "Spurn the opportunity to set one group against another. Thrust aside the temptation to set yourself in a group apart in this delicately balanced economic and social system which has made our nation great," Stratton said.

Not being pro-anything to the exclusion of all other things, the governor added, "is advice as good within your chosen political party as it is within society in general." Quoting Statesman Edmund Burke, he said: "All government --indeed, every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act-- is founded on compromise and barter."

Gov. Stratton praised present-day U.S. government at all levels for facing its responsibilities in step with the political ideals of Burke.

"There is no forgotten man, no second-class citizen. Bias and prejudice have no place in our framework of conduct and I firmly believe they are on the way out at all levels of government, in all parts of the nation," he said.

"It is the responsibility of government and of those who conduct the affairs of our great political parties, to continue this concept of government for the people--all the people.

"Today, with a gigantic struggle in our world between the forces of freedom and slavery, that responsibility here at home becomes increasingly important," the governor concluded.

Carbondale, Illinois---Thirty Southern Illinois teachers enrolled in a workshop at Carbondale want to restore physical conditioning to the list of schoolboy ideals.

The workshop--meeting four days a week at Southern Illinois University until July 11th -- was set up in response to growing concern over physical fitness in children.

Dr. Edward Shea -- Chairman of S-I-U's department of physical education for men -- says most youngsters today, even many athletes, don't know how to use their muscles properly. They do themselves more harm than good in such everyday activities as walking or lifting.

The object of the workshop is to show teachers how they can correct these failings in their students before they become lifelong habits.

The end of the workshop will tie in with a two-day conference featuring Dr. Shane McCarthy, executive director of President Eisenhower's Council on Youth Fitness. The conference will be aimed at helping community leaders and school teachers start fitness programs on the local level.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May -- A new twist will be applied to the often-dramatized life of Abraham Lincoln in a Southern Illinois University student's experimental stage production here Wednesday (May 28).

"Lincoln in Letters," an idea of Carbondale Graduate Student Tom Sill, will feature dramatic readings of letters to and from Lincoln. Narration by Joe Embser, Benton student, will bind the readings together. The free public performance will begin at 8 p.m. in the Southern Playhouse.

Peter Morris, son of SIU President Delyte W. Morris and a speech student at Southern, will play the part of Lincoln. Other Lincoln correspondents to be represented will include Generals Hooker and McClellan; Mrs. Bixby, whose letter concerned the war deaths of her five sons; Mary Owens, Lincoln's first girl friend and John Wilkes Booth.

Other cast members include Darwin Payne and Margaret Ritchie of Carbondale; Bennie Jackson of Mt. Vernon; Dorothy Beck of Winchester; Jerry Henderson, Nashville, Tenn., and Joseph Miller of Murray, Ky..

The hour-long performance will be staged with few props and only "suggestive" costuming. Historically, it will begin on the day Lincoln assumed duties as postmaster at New Salem and end on the day of his assassination.

The experiment is part of Sill's master's degree project which deals with the oral reading of letters.

Carbondale, Illinois --- High school seniors and recent high school graduates can get a preview of college science courses at Southern Illinois University this summer.

Between July 7th and August 6th, there will be a series of three-day sessions on the campus to acquaint teenagers with science courses taught at the University. They will get introductory lectures, laboratory work and field trips dealing with chemistry, physics, botany, microbiology and other subjects.

Chalmer Gross, coordinator of the program, says such pre-college preparation is important because science courses are among the most difficult the students will encounter when they get to college.

Carbondale, Illinois --- A Southern Illinois University workshop now in progress is showing teachers how they can start foreign language training in the elementary schools.

It is the fifth annual workshop of its kind, directed by Dr. Hellmut Hartwig -- who for several years has been teaching German to grade school children in Carbondale.

As part of the workshop, a Spanish teacher is conducting a class for first-graders -- to demonstrate that languages can be enjoyed even at this early age.

Carbondale, Illinois --- The Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra will present a free "Pop" concert at Southern Illinois University Tuesday evening.

The 8 p.m. concert will be outdoors -- on the patio of S-I-U's Woody Hall.

CARBONDALE, ILL., JUNE -- The Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra will borrow one of Boston's most endeared traditions when it opens a summer "Pop" series here Tuesday (July 1) night at 8 p.m.

For the first summer program in its 11-year history, the 60-piece group will play a free open air concert of light classics on the Patio at the rear of Woody Hall, a women's residence unit on the campus. The audience will be seated at brightly covered tables lit by candles--an informal arrangement that is as much a part of the Boston Pops Orchestra repertoire as "The Sorcerer's Apprentice."

Light refreshments (instead of the usual champagne served in Boston) will be provided by the Southern Illinois University Office of Student Affairs which is co-sponsoring the new series with the SIU music department.

Conductor Carmine Ficocelli has announced a program of orchestral evergreens including Romberg's "Stouthearted Men," Ferde Grofe's "Mississippi Suite," Offenbach's "Ballet Parisien" and a medley of highlights from the hit musical, "Carousel."

Also scheduled are "Song of Jupiter from 'Semele'" by Handel-Anderson, featuring trumpet soloist David Friend of Festus, Mo.; Dittersdorf's "Tournament of Temperaments"; "South American Overture," by Merle Isaac; "Reverie," by George Drumm; "Praeludium, by Armas Jarnefelt and "In A Persian Market," by Ketelbey.

The same program will be presented July 8 when the Orchestra makes an appearance in Flora. To be sponsored by the Flora Recreation Board, the concert will begin at 8 p.m. in the Flora High School Auditorium.

Subsequent campus "Pops" concerts on the SIU campus will be given July 15 and 22. In case of rain they will be held at Shryock Auditorium.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- The Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra will borrow one of Boston's most endeared traditions for a summer concert tonight (Tuesday).

The 60-piece orchestra will play a program of light classics in an outdoor setting, beginning at 8 p.m. The audience will be seated at brightly-colored tables lit by candles, and refreshments will be served during the performance -- much in the manner of a Boston Pops Orchestra concert. There will be no admission charge.

Among the selections will be a medley of hits from "Carousel", and works by Offenbach, Grofe, and Sigmund Romberg. The same program will be repeated in Flora July 8th when the Southern Illinois Symphony performs there.

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS -- Two young opera and television performers will present a free recital at Southern Illinois University tomorrow night (Wednesday). Coloratura soprano Nadja Witkowska (NOD-ya Wit-COW-aka) and Baritone John Gillaspay will sing a number of popular, semi-classic and operatic favorites in the 8 p.m. recital.

Miss Witkowska made her opera debut in Philadelphia and has appeared on many television shows, including "Omnibus" and the NBC-TV Opera Theater. Gillaspay was formerly with the St. Louis Municipal Opera and will sing with the San Francisco Opera Company next season.
